Attn: Active International Mexico

Mrs. Malu Escudero Alpízar
CEO Active International Mexico (AIM)

After a year of working along AIM in overtaking the legal and regulatory challenges that have arose in the Mexican market, we are honored to have been chosen as recipients of your trust and delighted to present the following legal service proposal to expand the scope of our services.

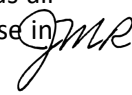

1. Proposed scope of work.

Under our current arrangement, DLG provides legal advice to AIM in all their commercial transactions under the new Publicity Law, as well as migrating former transactions into new business models, taking into account, tax, regulatory and commercial implications in each operation. The natural course of our advisory has led us to also advice in corporate, tax, labor, commercial and civil law for different aspects of AIM's ongoing operation.

After the fruitful conversations sustained with AIM's management, we are convinced that the firm can take care of all AIM's corporate, commercial and regulatory legal necessities. This would imply replacing the legal firm that handles corporate matters and legal bookkeeping for AIM, as well as undertaking the forthcoming corporate restructure that may be necessary whether from new business models under Publicity Law, or other aspects.

At the beginning of this process, DLG would conduct a legal audit of AIM's corporate books and see if any updating or corrections are necessary after running a risk assessment on possible oversights. This will include, among others, a PoA checklist, obtaining a copy of both entities' public records (folio mercantil), see board and shareholder meetings minutes in their respective books, issue updated share certificates if necessary, among other tasks.

Furthermore, the firm would also provide services in labor routine matters such as hiring and firing legal procedures as well as consults from Client.

Under the new scope, DLG will continue to provide advice, at partner and senior associate level, in sitting in with other services providers, stakeholders, international corporate agents, or Mexican authorities in the development of rutinary commercial transactions and or problems that need legal handling (tax, labor, etc.) This was not encompassed on our original scope of work; however it has been the case that it's been needed and we have been more than happy to provide it. All day-to day legal advice will still be provided, such as all legal consultations needed in everyday business, legal opinions, review of future contracts, rutinary advise in decision making.

Any legal representation, litigation, settlements or other judicial or extra judicial procedures, are not included in the scope of work, however they can be handled at the request of the Client prior agreement of terms between the firm and AIM.

2. Proposed fees.

As previously mentioned to the Client, the time and human resources the firm has allocated in advising AIM in order to provide the quality of services the Client deserves and DLG demands from itself, is not in balance with the amount charged as monthly fee. Therefore, we suggest for a re-balance of the amount of the flat fee, even without the expansion of the scope. This conclusion is drawn from a general practice DLG has of conducting an annual revision of time reports and time dedicated to clients. In this case, the average of monthly time spent by the firm on AIM would amount to legal fees up to $8,500 USD monthly on a time based fee scheme (see table below for rates), without taking into account any time reported by the main partner on direct phone calls.

Notwithstanding, at DLG, we strongly believe AIM is a strategic Client and leader in the publicity and barter market in Mexico. We would very much like to continue to work alongside AIM and in the adaptation process of the new ways of business in the publicity market, but furthermore, legally advise and accompany management in every day-to-day decision in goods and services, remarketing, etc., in a context where legal advice has now become a continuous necessity.

In that regard, DLG suggests a 12 month contract for a monthly fixed fee (iguala) of $6,375 (six thousand three hundred and seventy five dollars) plus VAT. This proposed fee has a 25% discount of the average time spent on AIM's business in addition with the considerations mentioned above and also would represent a considerable expansion in the scope of work in favor of the Client. Furthermore, DLG or the Client may request for a revision of the fee in case a substantial modification or miscalculation has taken place. In such case, the firm will provide activity reports for the Client, notwithstanding that both parties are free to terminate the relationship with a 30 days notice, provided that payments are up to date.

For the Client's reference, the DLG hourly rates table for 2022 is the following (VAT not included):

Lawyer	Fees
Partner	500 USD
Sr. Associate	300 USD
Jr. Associate	230 USD
Law Clerk	110 USD
